

Responsible Budget Coalition

The Responsible Budget Coalition (RBC) is a large and diverse coalition of approximately 200 organizations statewide that are concerned about state budget and tax issues. It includes organizations that serve children, families, veterans, seniors and people with disabilities; education groups concerned about early learning, K-12 and higher education; labor unions; faith-based and civic organizations; and many others.

The individual organizations that belong to the RBC represent a diverse range of interests but are united by these three common principles:

- Adequate revenue to support state priorities and make smart investments
- No more cuts to vital programs and services
- Fairness in raising revenue and making any cuts caused by failure to raise adequate revenue

The RBC supports legislative proposals that are consistent with these principles because we all do better when we all do better.

The RBC is organized into four working groups:

1. Policy: generates fact sheets, talking points and other materials that support the RBC principles as well as the needs of the other working groups
2. Legislative: Springfield-based lobbyist group that creates and executes our under the dome strategy
3. Field: coordinates targeted in-district grassroots organizing, including identifying stories and leaders regionally
4. Communications: crafts our messages and coordinates media placements

The productivity of each working group relies on member participation; the RBC has never been a funded organization with staff and resources and consequentially depends on sweat equity. When we do the work, however, we have proven to be an extremely productive and effective group.

If your organization would like to join the RBC, join one of its committee, and/or you would like to receive our emails without joining the RBC, please contact MacKenzie Speer, Shriver Center on Poverty Law, mackenziespeer@povertylaw.org.

If you would like more information about the RBC, please contact one of its coordinators, Emily Miller of Voices for Illinois Children, emiller@voices4kids.org, or Dan Lesser, Shriver Center on Poverty Law, danlesser@povertylaw.org
